do, in altiſſima quercu conſtructo, inter arcem nouam Mauritij Principis, & Miſenam oppidũ. Vulgus opinatur eſſe Aquilas, neq; aliter de Alſaticis in Cronicorum libris ſuſpicatur Hedio, cuius deſcriptio cum ijs Vulturibus, quorum tres hic vidimus, maxima ex parte conuenit. Pedibus nonnulli vtuntur, vt ijs imponant candelabra. Adijcit Ornithologus Agnos, Hædos & in rupibus hinnullos Rupicaprarum roſtro impetentem ferire, & ſi collabantur, iacentium corpora depaſci. De hoc ſimpliciterne Vultur ſit, an ex Vulture & Aquila compoſitum genus, alij iudicent. Sed quid ego ſentiam, iam dixi anteà. An hoc ſit genus illud, quod Albertus Homero Melanokon vocari ſcribit? Huic enim ſoli peculiare eſt Leporibus inſidiari, eoſq; necare, præterea niger eſt, & pullos incorrupto alimento enutrit, docetq; venari, ſolus inter cæteras velox, & ad docendum aptus.

DE VVLTVRE AVREO
Ornithologi. Cap. VI.

VVLTVRIS aurei pellem ad nos, inquit Ornithologus, aliquando miſſam ex Rhætis Alpinis, roſtro adhuc & cruribus hærentibus, dum contemplarer, hoc modo deſcripſi: Multa hic Vultur communia habet cum genere Aquilæ alpinæ (cuius figuram & deſcriptionem in Aquilæ hiſtoria primam dedimus) ſed per omnia maior eſt. Longus eſt à roſtro ad extremam caudam ſex dodrantes & paulò amplius: ad extremos vngues quinq; dodrãtes aut paulò minus. Longitudo ſuperioris roſtri, quantum eius aperitur, ſeptem ferè digiti trãſuerſi. Caudæ longitudo circiter tres dodrantes. Tota pars ſupina, id eſt, collum inferius, pectus & venter, & pedes quoq; ruffo ſunt colore, dilutiore quidem caudam verſus, rubentiore autem verſus caput. Digiti pedum fuſco vel corneo colore ſunt. Alarum penna longiſſima quatuor ferè dodrantes æquat. Subnigricant ſeu fuſcæ ſunt omnes alarum pennæ vno ferè colore; paruulæ tamen ſupremæ in alis nigriores ſunt, & per medium aliæ ſubruffis maculis, aliæ ſubalbidæ, circa imum diſtinguntur. eò nigriores autem ſunt, quò propiores dorſo, vbi ſplendent præ nigredine. Pennæ per medium dorſum nigræ ſunt, ſplendétq;: in earum medio cauliculi albi, pręſertim, quæ circa medium dorſum ſunt, & dimidia colli parte: reliqua enim colli pars pennas ex albido ruffas habet. Caudæ pennis idem color eſt, qui alarum, nempe fuſcus. Huic omnino mihi reſpondere videtur, ſi tamen Vultures verè cognouit, genus illud, quod Albertus vocat Vulturem verum, Græcis, vt ille ſomniat, Greſſion dictum: maius cæteris ſeſquialtera proportione, vocem edens fortem, colore citrino, aliquantum rubeſcente, rariùs apparet. Veruntamen ſi falſus voluit Albertus γνήσιον dicere, quod Aquilæ aureæ competit: atq; is vel Aquilas cũ Vulturibus confudit, vel non benè diſtinxit. Aurei verò Vulturis icon, quam Ornithologus exhibet, ea eſt, quæ capite de Leporario Vulture ſecundo loco typographi incuriâ poſita eſt.

Finis Libri Tertij.
