psittacorum adinstar, viridibus exornatæ sunt, alarum inferior utraque maculâ nigrâ signata est, oculos habet subflavescentes, in anteriori parte capitis inter cornula longâ tenui proboscide, quàm compendiosè componere, & sub capite recondere novit, instructa est, ad pabulum attrahendum. Hæcce jure merito omnium notatu dignissima meo judicio metamorphosis habenda est.

XXIV. Tilia florens.

Magnæ ac elegantes in tiliis erucæ reperiuntur, quarum hic inferiùs una exhibetur, tinctæ sunt hepatico colore, punctis albicantibus per dorsum notatæ, ab inferiori corporis parte flavæ, in posteriore membro cæruleum prostat cornulum, & à retrò flava macula conspicitur, quietæ sunt ac inertes, tactæ tamen velut irâ concitatæ capite hùc illùc validè ferunt, plenam accretionem noctæ deponunt exuvias, ac in aurelias nigras immutantur, hæ velut exanimes in sequentis anni mensem usque majum jacent, unde tandem ingens flava viridi colore maculata phalæna vespere volitans educitur.

XXV. Convolvulus minor purpureus.

Rarissimum est ingens hocce erucarum genus, in agris plerumquè morantur, & hujusce lolii radicibus aluntur, è lucido fusco colore tinctæ, lineis, maculisque fuscis variegatæ sunt, excrementa relatis in figura 23. correspondent; sub finem Julii hujusmodi erucam scatulæ terrâ repletæ incluseram, in hac rotundam sibi profundamque fovebat foveam, hanc, ingressa, cavitatem foliis obtegebat, ac in aureliam ab antè viridem, & à retrò flavam sequenti tamen die fusco colore variatam, oculos & inter eos proboscidem, referentem immutabatur, validè movebatur, Septembre magnam in phalænam transfigurata fuit, cujus corpus anterius alæque cinericeæ nigro colore mirificè fuerant condecoratæ, alis litteræ B. C. V. & M. caractere romano perspicuè erant insculptæ, ab anteriori parte capitis longâ proboscide fuscâ munita est, quæ simplex à capite oriunda post in duas utrinque crispatas divaricabatur,
