XXXVII. Salix niger aquaticus.

Hujusmodi virides erucas punctatas in frisiâ quàm plurimas super hujusmodi salicibus atque malis, quarum arborum foliis tanquam pabulo in vigesimam octavam usque Augusti pascebantur, inveni, ubi nigras in aurelias immutabantur, & decima quarta Aprilis subsequens anni duæ hujusmodi cinereæ phalænæ ova viridia instantaneè parientes inde productæ fuerunt. Cæteri verò papiliunculi omnes citiùs educebantur, quorum alæ tantoperè fuerant intricatæ, ut ne formam quidem eorum agnoscere potuerim.

XXXVIII. Salix.

Elegans hæc eruca salice tanquam pabulo suo vescebatur, in vigesimam secundam usque Junii, ubi mutabatur in aureliam, indies in fuscum colorem magis magisque vergentem, roris adinstar super pruna cærulea descendens, inde tertiâ Augusti elegans hujusmodi cinerea rubicundaque phalæna prodiit.

XXXIX. Flos salicis.

Bicornis hæc eruca Lugdunum Batavorum mihi translata ibidem in salice reperta fuit, unde quoque per me enutrita fuit. Vel minimo etiam motu sonove percepto caput intrò retraxit, ac aliquamdiù nullatenùs movebatur. Escam capiens ambo cornula arctè composuit; subindè ex hisce binis cornibus alia duo mollia eaque rubicunda ejusdem cum antè memoratis durioribus, longitudinis exseruit; hæc in unam atque alteram partem motitans, ea tandem intrò rursùs ità recondidit, ut nec umbra quidem eorum amplius conspiceretur. Hoc in vigesimam sextam usquè Julii perduravit, ubi telâ sibi paratâ subsequens anni, Aprili mense in hanc phalænam immutata fuit.
